Sir,

I have the honor to submit for the information of Government an extract from my Inspection Notes in the Chennagiri

19th August 1888.

Inspected the Siddan
nnel. The Aunildar
ted out some of the ds of Horakalli and these villages which e been refused to given out for cultiva
on the ground
they contain many trees.

I consider that e modification e present rules is ssary in regard to lands under Sultikere.

The date trees are mostly on the bunds of the fields, and do not interfere with cultivation. Special sanction of Government may be obtained for giving out such lands for cultivators on taking a muchalika that the toddy trees would not be interfered with.

3. At one time the whole of the lands below the tank would appear to have been covered with toddy trees. A special gang of convicts was working here about 20 years ago uprooting these trees. The toddy trees now standing in the margin of the fields

clearing then made and subsequently by Panhandlers. I find trees thickly grown over even the bend of the channel. A belt 50 yards wide extends all along the channel. It may be a convenience to permanente these clusters of chaparral, and give out the remaining lands for cultivation without any preservation.

At present many of the lands are not cultivated every year owing to scarcity of labor, insalubrity of the climate and the high assessment on the lands, but the Ryotedars are afraid to resign them lest the Government should, on the ground of toddy trees standing on them, refuse to give the lands again for cultivation if once resigned.

5. On many lands brought on the reserved list also the toddy trees, though large in number stand only in the margin of the fields, and do not inter-fere with cultivation, and the Ryotedars them-selves do not want the
trees.

6. A slight modification in the survey rules
as above indicated

ct result in benefit the Government and the ryots and will in no way injure the interests of the Toddy contractors.

I find a similar difficulty in the Malnad.
Many lands there are not cultivated every year owing to their having been brought under assessment at the survey ryots do not find it profitable to keep them under continued occupation.
They would like to take up the lands for one year and after reaping
the harvest to resign them. This will be the most advantageous thing for them to do but owing to "Dualki" sale rules the Ryots are forced to keep on the lands from year to year although they may derive no profit from them. There are in many cases, a few trees standing on these open lands. These are generally of the inferior kinds, and the ryots when they obtain the land on "Dualki" do not cut them owing to there being abundance of timber and fuel to be had in the Malnad,

and to the scarcity of labour, but cultivate the open spaces removing only such trees as are a positive obstruction.

When the lands are resigned and are applied for again there is great difficulty in getting them in time as the formalities of "Waiki" sale have to be gone through over again owing to these same trees which had already formed the subject of "waiki" sales standing on the land.
The value of the trees
is very insignificant, but owing to the stringency of the rules the land is not obtained in time with the result that the ryot to have to hold on these practically useless lands

lands against their interest.
I would recommend a rule being passed for the Malnad that when once dry lands have been brought under the plough they should be given out for cultivation without "malki" sale when applied for within 3 years of the last occupation.
